

FAR EAST BROADCASTING COMPANY TURNS TO MONGOLIA

Far East Broadcasting Company (FEBC) has made Mongolia a top priority in the past year. The ministry has had a presence in the country's Central province and is now making inroads into Hentii province.

"We must expand our reach if we are to truly make a difference in Mongolia," said FEBC President Greg Harris. To meet this goal, FEBC is launching an initiative to reach all 21 provinces in Mongolia via radio by the year 2020.

Popular programming on FEBC-Mongolia's WIND-FM in the capital city of Ulaanbaatar includes the popular call-in show, "Lifesaver." During the program local pastors discuss a variety of topics of interest to listeners.

In recent years FEBC-Mongolia, along with churches and mission groups, has made a significant impact on this communist nation. Sixteen years ago there were only a handful of Christians in the nation. Today tens of thousands proclaim Christ as Saviour. Nearly 30,000 attended a Christian festival in Ulaanbaatar last year.
